Workforce Development / Knowledge Transfer

What if you have an aging workforce and most of your corporate knowledge is about to walk out the door?

Like many other government organizations, Naval Supply Systems Command (NAVSUP) is experiencing an exodus of highly skilled government employees. By 2020, it estimates that 60% of its workforce will be under the age of 54. NAVSUP is replenishing its workforce with new hires, many directly out of college. While these new employees are energizing the workforce, most lack government experience and do not fully understand NAVSUP's role in providing global supply chain management and logistics services to the Navy, Marine Corps, Joint and Allied Forces.

Enterprise Horizon Consulting Group (EHCG) in partnership with Maga Design, is developing scalable and repeatable training and knowledge capture artifacts, templates, guides, and collateral to effectively grow new NAVSUP workforce knowledge, skills and abilities.

By 2021, all new NAVSUP employees will receive a three-tiered training curriculum that explains its vital role in supporting operational Naval Forces. Training will be accessible virtually and in a classroom environment and will specifically highlight the role of each individual to ensure continuity and seamless service to NAVSUP's global customers and service partners.
